Albany's make-believe fire department was still pouring feeble streams of water upon the ruins, trying to cool it suffi ciently for a search to be made for bodies, although as far as the proprie-tors of the hotel are informed, all of the sts escaped from the building before the fire department arrived. of a suit. With him were Congressmen Curtis and Wever, Judge Kellogg, John Drake and several others. When the alarm reached them the door leading into the hall was opened, but the hall was filled with smoke. Then the men went to the window and looked out, but the height was greater than they cared to leap, and Mr. Malby said he would take the chance of getting out by the hall. He led the way through the smoke, and finally he and his friends reached the street in a half-stifled condition.

John E. Milholland and Henry G. Burleigh were on the third floor near the elevator shaft. They ran from room to room, arousing the occupants by pounding on the doors or breaking them in where they could get no answer. They found three women huddled in a corner and so overcome with fear that they could do nothing but wring their hands and cry softly for help. They were assisted to the staircase and one of them fainted, and she had to be carried. It was said the women were members of the Della Fox company, that is playing here.

CHIEF BRESNAN

LAID TO REST.

A little French woman, a singer in the company, was discovered by a gentleman running to and fro in the smoke-filled co. Tidor on the first floor. She was clad in a dainty tea gown, and delicate slippers were on her feet. She clutched a little Skye terrier to her breast, and was screaming "Mon Dieu!" The gentleman led her to the stairs leading to the billiard-room. The door to the room was barred, and there was a little knot of men clustered in front of it. It was burst open, and so was the coor leading to the street. The little singer and her dog were escorted to the Kenmore. Two Carriages Were Needed to Carry All the Floral Tokens.

John E. Milholland also distinguished himself. He was as cool as a cucumber and worked like one of old Harry Howard's famous fire fighters.

Mr. James Oliver, "our Jimmy," of Paradise Park, left the rescue of guests to others, but worked frantically to save a nice fur coat which he said he could smell burning, and a No. 8 hat. Both were reduced to ashes, and "Jimmy is inconsolable this morning. He's wearing his Summer coat.

"A clear case of Brockway," he said. "I always get the worst of it."

Sol Berliner Took a Hand.

The people in the street shouted to him to wait until the firemen could raise a isader. Then they saw him throw one Fish's headquarters, worked heroically and of a rope out, climb over the win-be tive there. In fact, every man in the Department, from the Commissioners down would have been on hand to pay homage to the memory of the dead hero, but duty kept most of them away.

As for the flowers sent to decorate the casket and afterwards the grave, there was an abundance. There were two carriages filled to overflowing with them, and even at that a few cherished ones were kept in the house as mementos.

Fifty carriages, preceded by a hearse and those holding the foral display, left the house of the late chief, at 61 Third avenue, and arrived at the church door at exactly 10 o clock. Then the pall-bearers proceeded up the steps, and into the church, which was already crowded. They were followed by the casket, upon which was the following inscription:

CHIEF JOHN J BRESNAN.

Beehind the casket, and dressed in deep mourning, came the dead man's three children, one daughter and two sons. A special musical programme had been arranged, and as the casket containing the body moved up the centre aisle of the church, the choir, under the direction of Gaston M. Deithler, and the chancel choir, of fifty boys, under Rev. J. Young, sang the "In Terre."

The musical programme otherwise consisted of the choral aria from the sixth Sonata, by Menlessohn; Motet by Schwietzer; Requiem by Witt, and absolution by Marchot.

The celebrant of the requiem mass was Rev. Father Van Rensse.aer, Rev. Father Denny, deacon, and Rev. Father Singleton, sub-deacon.

The latter is professor of the class in St. Francis Navier's College, of which the dead chief's son, Hugh, is a member. There he hung, with his feet scrapping against the wall of the building, more than fifty feet from the ground.

The fremen slipped the longest ladder they had off the truck and a dozen men started to raise it. As they got it almost upright it slipped and fell to the street. Mr. Fookes bent his head and looked down, and again he tried to get a foothold on the wall. He was swinging to and fro, and it seemed certain that he would fall.

The second effort to raise the ladder was successful, and Mr. Fookes was soon clambering down.

Escaping Gas, Cable Car and a Bad-Tempered Husband.

Found with a Scalp Wound in the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

A defective gas jet in her room nearly caused the death last night of Annie Kindsley, forty-five years old, who lives at 241 East Eighty-fourth street. A strong smell of escaping gas alarmed other inmates in the house, and the gas was traced to Mrs. Kindsley's room. She was found in bed unconscious. She was suffering from asphyxiation and was removed to the Presbyterian Hospi-
